Chicago, July 1.—(U.P.)—Battling fog and exhaustion, John and Kenneth Hunter drove their old Stinson-Detroit monoplane through the air-planes over Sky Harbor airport this afternoon, piling hour after hour on their new sustained flight record.

The two brothers, coal miners before they were aviators, had withstood 477 hours of continuous flying at 1:40 P. M. CDT and showed no signs of quitting despite the fog and bad weather they encountered today. The old 420-hour record lay shattered far behind the veteran monoplane.

Shortly after the fliers flew through the 477th hour, a microphone was lowered from another plane into the cramped cockpit of the endurance ship and the aviators spoke over a national hookup.

"Hello, everybody," John Hunter said amid the roar of his motor and that of the accompanying plane. "We are still up here and going strong. We don't even know what day it is."

By the time the 477th hour was passed the fog, which this morning threatened the plane, had been blown away and the Hunter brothers flew higher to greater safety. The rain also cleared up but the sky remained cloudy.

Chicago, July 1.—A blanket of fog settled over Sky Harbor airport where the Hunter brothers are flying toward a new sustained endurance record today and made the mid-morning refueling extremely hazardous. Albert Hunter, one of the refuelers, said they might have to change fields for the next refueling.

After the refueling plane had been in the air for an hour, it finally established contact and delivered gasoline to the City of Chicago as it ended its 473rd hour in the air at 9:40 A. M. CDT.

The fog extended within 500 feet of the ground and the air was bumpy, making the refueling difficult. The City of Chicago was so nearly out of gasoline at the time that the pilot was forced to rock the plane to drain the last drops of fuel into the motor.

The fog appeared to be getting worse, rolling in from Lake Michigan in clouds over the field.

"We may have to change fields if this gets worse," Albert said after the refueling. "We can't refuel so close to the ground without considerable danger to both planes."

With the fog came a driving rain, forcing John and Kenneth Hunter to fly in circles over the field at a height of about 500 feet.

As hazardous as the refueling was, a change of menu was represented in the bag that carried breakfast to the fliers. Instead of hard-boiled eggs, they got scrambled ones from their sister, Irene, who cooks delicacies for her flying brothers. Grape juice replaced orange juice as a beverage. A large vacuum bottle of hot water also was sent up so the pilots could wash some of the grease off before eating.

Wilson Herrin, one of the backers of the endurance flight, sent a note asking that the fliers set a specific time for landing. No reply was forthcoming from the aviators who have said they will stay up as long as the motor lasts.

HUNTER BOYS TELL STORY OF THEIR FLIGHT

NOT MUCH FUN TO JOB OF FLYING, BREAKING ENDURANCE MARKS

IT'S NOTHING BUT WORK, TAKING ON FUEL, DODGING THUNDERSTORMS

The United Press presents here with an exclusive signed story by John and Kenneth Hunter, brother endurance fliers who have shattered all previous records for sustained refueling flights and still circle over Sky Harbor airport piling up hour on hour to their credit. The story was written under difficulties in the small, oil soaked cabin of the City of Chicago in answer to questions sent up yesterday by a United Press correspondent.

Over Sky Harbor Airport, Chicago.

July 1.—There isn't much amusement for us flying around up here breaking all the records on the books. Mostly we have to work, taking on fuel and dodging the thunderstorms that have come so fast the last few days.

No, we don't get much sleep. From one to five hours at a time and then just as likely as not the one who is sleeping will be routed out before he has much more than got his eyes shut.

We don't know for sure how we feel now. Kinda dead like.

Not so good. The first thing we'll do when we get down will be to get a good long sleep on a regular bed. Sleeping up here is not so hot.

Well, it's hard to say how long we'll stay up. Maybe 520 hours but we think probably longer. Only the weather knows.

Yes, we'll try to beat the next record if this one is beaten. We intend to bring it back to Chicago and keep it here.

Now that food question. We don't feel so good now but like to eat chicken. Because it flies, too, we guess. Hot dogs and hard-boiled eggs are regular he-man food for fliers and we've asked for more and better service along that line.

GERM BATTLE ON AGAINST TRACHOMA

SCIENCE MUST HAVE HUMAN BODY BEFORE IT CAN CONTROL MALADY

Santa Fe, N. M., July 1.—(U.P.)—Science must have a human body before it can control the trachoma germ, and if Woo Dak San, diminutive Chinese slayer, will not give his body, a specialist will give him, Dr. F. I. Proctor, authority in the germ battle, said today.

Dr. Proctor was pleading for the commutation of the death sentence of Woo to one of life imprisonment if the Chinese would offer his body to medical science for experimentation.

The germ, causing an affliction of the eyes frequently resulting in blindness, has been isolated, according to the claims of a Japanese doctor, who died during his research.

Dr. Proctor now is carrying on the fight for its control. He conceived the idea of offering Woo, who is condemned to death for murder, a chance for life in return for a service to science and humanity.

The little Chinese, however, when told of the proposal to submit himself for inoculation with the germ to test its isolation, shrank in his cell from fear of blindness.

Dr. Proctor, while insisting that the chance of resulting blindness was remote, declared he would not press Woo's case.

"If the Chinaman is not willing, then the case will be dismissed," he said. "The experiment will be tried out in the next few months regardless of whether Woo consents to inoculation." Three specialists, he said, already had volunteered to permit germ inoculations upon themselves.

Every Bell in German Rhineland Rung in Celebration of Evacuation by the French

EVEN BERLIN, FAR AWAY FROM SCENE, REJOICES

LATENESS OF HOUR KEPT NO ONE AWAY FROM PATRIOTIC RALLIES

COMPLETE INDEPENDENCE RESTORED FIRST TIME IN 11 YEARS

Berlin, July 1.—(U.P.)—Every bell in the German Rhineland began to ring at midnight today as the German patriots started the celebration of the evacuation by the French.

The lateness of the hour kept no one away from the folk gatherings, patriotic rallies, or official meetings which marked the restoration of complete independence for the Rhineland for the first time in eleven years.

Even Berlin, far removed from the Rhineland zone, joined in the rejoicing over the departure of the last French troops from Wiesbaden and Mayence yesterday. Chancellor Heinrich Brüning and Sir Horace Rumbold, the British ambassador, attended the celebrations held in the municipal stadium here.

The evacuation of the third zone—the last to be freed of French troops—was completed yesterday after a month of preparatory work. Only two battalions of French troops, and the Rhineland commission had remained there, the other troops having been withdrawn gradually for several weeks.

No indictments marred the final evacuation, except that as the last train steamed out of Wiesbaden a few catcalls and jeers from the German populace followed the French officers aboard it.

$80,000 FIRE AT FT. FRANCES NOW CONTROLLED

GUTS DEPARTMENT STORE, AND THREATENS BUSINESS DISTRICT

VOLUNTEERS ASSIST QUENCHING FLAMES, 6 STREAMS OF WATER USED

Fort Frances, Ont., July 1.—(U.P.)—After a two-hour fight firemen apparently had under control an $80,000 blaze that gutted a department store and threatened the business district today.

Aided by volunteers, firemen directed six streams of water at the burning building pouring three thousand gallons of water a minute on the blaze.

The fire started in the Miller department store in the heart of the city's business district. Damage was largely confined to the Miller store and the Roseman department store next door.

At one time firemen thought it might be necessary to call the International Falls fire department across the river to aid in the fight.

Insurance partially covered the loss.

HOOVER'S IDEA ABOUT REVIVING GENERAL BUSINESS

OLD CONCEPTION OF BUSINESS DEPRESSION SHOULD BE OBLITERATED

ERRONEOUS TO THINK IT "INEVITABLE FEVER WHICH MUST RUN ITS COURSE"

Washington, July 1.—(U.P.)—President Hoover believes the old conception of business depression "as an inevitable fever which must run its course" has given way to the realization that a "sound economic policy" including the "prudent expedition of construction" will maintain employment, consumption of goods and economic stability.

The chief executive expressed this conviction last night in speaking over the radio from his White House study to the 22nd annual conference of governors at Salt Lake City. He revealed, during his remarks, that national, state and local governments have expended or contracted for, during the last six months, public works costing $1,700,000,000.

This amount, he said, exceeds by $200,000,000 even the boom year of 1929. Also, Mr. Hoover said, utilities and business concerns have aided employment by a construction program which "exceeds even the $200,000,000 of increase over 1929 accomplished by the public authorities."

While thanking the governors for their "notable contribution" to the public construction program which he sought to stimulate after last fall's stock market crash, Mr. Hoover reminded them there was "every need for continued serious effort."

LIKELIHOOD OF GREAT QUAKE IN MISSISSIPPI VALLEY

Washington, July 1.—(U.P.)—The likelihood of a great earthquake in the Mississippi valley is the latest reason advanced for the "reservoir system" of flood control on the "father of waters."

In a radio speech last night Rep. Stone, republican, Oklahoma, recalled the disastrous Mississippi valley quakes of 1811 and 1812 and predicted another one soon if the reservoir system is not installed.

According to scientists, he said, the vast deposits of silt brought each year to the mouth of the stream result in earth disturbances. This cause could be removed, he explained, by storing "water at the river's source."

Stone said there was general dissatisfaction in the Mississippi valley with the present "Jadwin plan" of flood control.

KIWANIS IN URBAN-RURAL RELATIONS WORK

48 MINNESOTA AND NORTH DAKOTA CLUBS REPORT EXPERIENCES

AIM TO BETTER TOWN AND COUNTRY RELATIONS IN AREAS

Atlantic City, N. J., July 1.—(U.P.)—Forty-eight Minnesota and North Dakota Kiwanis clubs are engaged in urban-rural relations work in order to better town and country relations, the delegations reported at the international convention of the organization today.

Those directing the activities include A. N. Erickson, Red Wing, Minn., P. G. Peterson, Detroit Lakes, Minn., H. E. Kiger, Alexandria, Minn., Ernest F. Gelhaus, Webster, S. D., chairman of the committee on agriculture, C. T. Clark, Crosby, N. D., George Handson, Bowbells, N. D., and Sidney Adams, Lisbon, N. D.

Hundreds of 4-H farm boys and girls are being given financial aid for poultry, cattle, pig and canning clubs while farm institutes and short courses are being sponsored.

The 72 clubs in the Minnesota-Dakota Kiwanis district are making excellent civic records, Dr. George A. Abbott, Grand Forks, N. D., governor of the district reported.

ABDUCTED FROM LOOP CORNER IN ST. PAUL—ROBBED

RESTAURANT MANAGER HERBERT ANDERSON LOSES $2,500 CASH

NO WEAPON WAS DRAWN, TWO BANDITS KEPT HANDS IN BULGING POCKETS

St. Paul, Minn., July 1.—(U.P.)—Abducted from a loop center during the noon-hour rush today, Herbert Anderson, restaurant manager, was robbed of $2,500 in cash by two unarmed bandits.

As Anderson started back to his restaurant from a loop bank, two men approached him with their hands in their pockets and forced him into the rear seat of a car.

Driving rapidly away from the downtown section, the men took the money and forced Anderson from the car on the Jessamine street bridge.

Anderson was forced to walk several blocks to the nearest telephone to call police. In the interval the car sped away before radio-equipped police cars could receive the alarm.

After the hold-up Anderson was convinced that neither of the men carried guns. Though they kept their hands bulging in their pockets, no weapon was drawn.

CHILD FALLS DOWN STAIRS AND DIES AN HOUR LATER

Minneapolis, July 1.—(U.P.)—Falling down a flight of stairs at her home, Ingrid Krohn, 9, died last night less than an hour after the fall at St. Mary's hospital. She was the daughter of Fredrick Krohn, city editor of the Minneapolis Tidende, Norwegian daily newspaper.

'JAKE' LINGLE'S MURDER STILL DEEP MYSTERY

TO CHICAGO IT IS SAME AS ROTHSTEIN MURDER IS TO NEW YORK

SEEMINGLY MONSTROUS THING THAT INVOLVES EVERY CITIZEN IN WINDY CITY

Chicago, July 1.—(U.P.)—Three weeks had passed today since Alfred "Jake" Lingle, Chicago Tribune reporter, was shot to death in a subway, but to the world in general his murder was more of a mystery than it had ever been before.

To Chicago, the case had become what the Arnold Rothstein murder was to New York, a seemingly monstrous thing that in some way or another seemed to involve every citizen within its boundaries, from the highest officials down.

That Lingle was a racketeer and that he was killed by gangsters were generally accepted beliefs, but why was he killed and by whom?

Rewards totalling $5,725 have been offered for answers to the questions, the police force has been reorganized as a result of the slaying, gang resorts have been raided and many arrests made, the alleged payroll of a notorious gang has been seized, all Chicago has worked itself into a near frenzy over gangland's apparent defiance to law—but the mystery only grows the deeper.

The latest result of the reorganized police department's drive against gangland, a drive which resulted directly from the slaying—was the arrest late yesterday of Grover Dullard and nine other alleged members of the notorious George "Bugs" Moran gang.

Dullard has been sought almost since the hour that Lingle was shot in the back of the head on June 9 as he walked through an Illinois Central subway on his way to board a train to go to a race track.

He was suspected, the special "board of strategy" appointed to investigate the crime announced, of being the man who handed the gun to the actual slayer of the reporter. The Chicago Herald and Examiner today named him as "the man who watched and trailed Alfred Lingle, murdered Tribune reporter, and then pointed him out to the actual killer."

One theory which has been advanced in the Lingle murder was that the reporter used his influence with city officials to bring about raids upon Moran dives and that the gangsters "put him on the spot," believing it would allow them more freedom in carrying on their activities. Lingle's name also has been linked frequently since his death with that of Al Capone, notorious Moran rival.

Arrested with Dullard and his nine associates was a girl, Henrietta Smith, who was said to be bookkeeper for Moran. A ledger, which police said contained the Moran payroll, was thrown from a window as the officers entered, but it was recovered. The men were taken to the detective bureau and given a "show up" before persons who witnessed the Lingle slaying. No announcement was made by police or the board of strategy as to whether Dullard was identified by any of these witnesses.

Since his death, financial deals have been disclosed which have put Lingle in the character of a master racketeer, secretly using the name and influence of his employers to "borrow" money from both gangsters and officials.

In reviewing the case today, the Tribune refers to Lingle as "being dubbed the 'unofficial chief of police,' called a fixer of gamblers, dog track promoters and gangsters' special privileges at the hands of police officials and politicians."

His alleged connection with any of these activities, newspapers have pointed out, might have provided someone with a motive for killing him. So, today, it made little difference what theory was advanced or what arrests of "men who were there" were made, to the public the questions still remained: "Who killed Jake Lingle and why?"

Los Angeles, July 1.—A suspect in the murder of Jake Lingle, Chicago newspaper reporter, was believed under arrest here today, although police refused to divulge why they detained a man in an outlying jail and a young brunette woman in a downtown hotel. The man was arrested after detectives had watched an apartment house

WANT LEGISLATIVE SLATE CLEANED UP ENTIRELY

MUSCLE SHOALS AND OTHER MEASURES SEEM TO BE SNARLED UP

SUBSTITUTE WORLD WAR VETERANS' PENSION BILL ALSO AN OBSTACLE

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, July 1.—An insurgent movement to make congress remain here all summer if necessary to clean up its legislative slate has been started in the senate by Senator George W. Norris, Nebraska, on Muscle Shoals and other disputed legislation which has been tied up in a legislative snarl.

What the movement will come to probably will be determinable after the senate acts today on the substitute world war veterans' pension bill. If the senate adopts liberalized payment system objectionable to President Hoover, the resulting tangle may delay adjournment indefinitely.

If the house bill, carrying the Hoover ideas, succeeds over the pending Walsh-Connelly amendment, it will be passed almost unanimously and members of both houses will prepare to go home Thursday.

Norris is probably the most skilled parliamentarian in the senate and his judiciary committee now is reporting important bills which demand attention.

Three of the minor court procedure reforms planned by the Wickersham law enforcement commission may be reported today and Norris will demand that they be acted upon.

The house leaders have been able to stifle all the so-called insurgent legislation which has passed the senate this session. These reforms, including the resolution for eliminating short sessions of congress have been shoved aside by the administration leaders in the house on various grounds, and the senate has never yet had time to fight the matter out with them.

"There is no reason why we should not stay here and do the business of the country in a legitimate and high class manner," Norris said in commenting on the legislative situation. "If senators have engagements they ought to be cancelled. I am practicing what I preach and am cancelling mine."

"We ought to run along all summer if necessary."

The regular leaders cannot make adjournment plans until the veterans legislation is disposed of. If they can pass a veterans' bill they figure they can defeat Norris. Senator Reed, republican, Penn., has announced he will keep the senate in session today until a final vote is reached on the veterans' measure.

Acting under suspension of rules the house moved onward to clean up as much legislation as can be passed before the expected adjournment later this week.

OLD MAN FACES CHARGES OF TRYING TO ROB A BANK

Red Wing, Minn., July 1.—(U.P.)—A mild-mannered old man sat in the Goodhue county jail today awaiting arraignment on a charge of attempting to hold up the State Bank of Stanton yesterday.

Smiling sadly, James Caldwell, 65, told visitors, "I wasn't ever in trouble before. The only times I ever came in contact with the law was when I served two 10-day sentences for drunkenness in Superior."

Caldwell was captured by the cashier of the Stanton bank who acted on a "hunch" and took the old man's empty gun away from him.

"I haven't any family," Caldwell said. "I just didn't know what to do. I didn't have any money so I thought I would hold up the bank and get some. But I didn't load the gun—I was afraid it might go off."

Only his manner and his gray hair indicates his age. Wearing the blue shirt and khaki trousers of the outdoor worker, Caldwell looked younger. His shoulders are tanned and his frame is wiry and sturdy. He is only about five feet, seven inches tall and weighs less than 150 pounds.

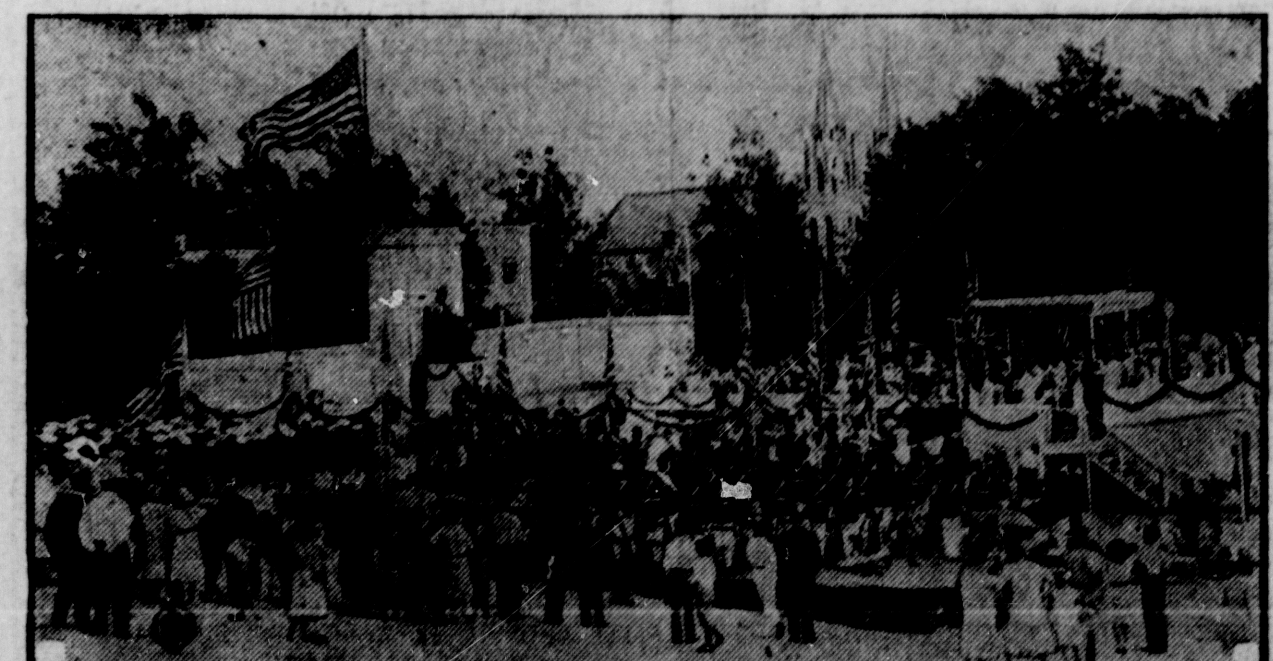

He said he had lived in Superior for many years until he left to look for work in Minnesota.

For several days, he was spirited to a precinct jail and held for questioning later today by district attorney's investigators. The woman was questioned for an hour in the prosecutor's offices and then returned to her hotel under a police matron's guard.

While police withheld details of the arrest they admitted two Chicago officials had been working with them for the last ten days. They promised more definite word after conversing again with the suspects.

It was reported that the woman was the wife of Frankie Foster, original owner of the gun used in the Lingle murder and now the object of a nationwide search. Secretiveness of the police was believed due to the large rewards offered for Lingle's slayer.

Memory of Departed Statesman Still Lives

A general view of the ceremonies attending the unveiling of the statue of James Buchanan in Meridian Park, Washington, D. C. President Hoover, in making the principal address, stressed the statesmanship and devotion to duty of the fifteenth President of the United States. Many noted Pennsylvanians representing the State of Buchanan's birth were on hand to take part in the presentation of the statue to the United States. (International Newsreel)

He revealed, during his remarks, that national, state and local governments have expended or contracted for, during the last six months, public works costing $1,700,000,000.

This amount, he said, exceeds by $200,000,000 even the boom year of 1929. Also, Mr. Hoover said, utilities and business concerns have aided employment by a construction program which "exceeds even the $200,000,000 of increase over 1929 accomplished by the public authorities."

While thanking the governors for their "notable contribution" to the public construction program which he sought to stimulate after last fall's stock market crash, Mr. Hoover reminded them there was "every need for continued serious effort."

LIKELIHOOD OF GREAT QUAKE IN MISSISSIPPI VALLEY

Washington, July 1.—(U.P.)—The likelihood of a great earthquake in the Mississippi valley is the latest reason advanced for the "reservoir system" of flood control on the "father of waters."

In a radio speech last night Rep. Stone, republican, Oklahoma, recalled the disastrous Mississippi valley quakes of 1811 and 1812 and predicted another one soon if the reservoir system is not installed.

According to scientists, he said, the vast deposits of silt brought each year to the mouth of the stream result in earth disturbances. This cause could be removed, he explained, by storing "water at the river's source."

Stone said there was general dissatisfaction in the Mississippi valley with the present "Jadwin plan" of flood control.

ABDUCTED FROM LOOP CORNER IN ST. PAUL—ROBBED

RESTAURANT MANAGER HERBERT ANDERSON LOSES $2,500 CASH

NO WEAPON WAS DRAWN, TWO BANDITS KEPT HANDS IN BULGING POCKETS

St. Paul, Minn., July 1.—(U.P.)—Abducted from a loop center during the noon-hour rush today, Herbert Anderson, restaurant manager, was robbed of $2,500 in cash by two unarmed bandits.

As Anderson started back to his restaurant from a loop bank, two men approached him with their hands in their pockets and forced him into the rear seat of a car.

Driving rapidly away from the downtown section, the men took the money and forced Anderson from the car on the Jessamine street bridge.

Anderson was forced to walk several blocks to the nearest telephone to call police. In the interval the car sped away before radio-equipped police cars could receive the alarm.

After the hold-up Anderson was convinced that neither of the men carried guns. Though they kept their hands bulging in their pockets, no weapon was drawn.

CHILD FALLS DOWN STAIRS AND DIES AN HOUR LATER

Minneapolis, July 1.—(U.P.)—Falling down a flight of stairs at her home, Ingrid Krohn, 8, died last night less than an hour after the fall at St. Mary's hospital. She was the daughter of Frederick Krohn, city editor of the Minneapolis Tidende, Norwegian daily newspaper.

'JAKE' LINGLE'S MURDER STILL DEEP MYSTERY

TO CHICAGO IT IS SAME AS ROTHSTEIN MURDER IS TO NEW YORK

SEEMINGLY MONSTROUS THING THAT INVOLVES EVERY CITIZEN IN WINDY CITY

Chicago, July 1.—(U.P.)—Three weeks had passed today since Alfred "Jake" Lingle, Chicago Tribune reporter, was shot to death in a subway, but to the world in general his murder was more of a mystery than it had ever been before.

To Chicago, the case had become what the Arnold Rothstein murder was to New York, a seemingly monstrous thing that in some way or another seemed to involve every citizen within its boundaries, from the highest officials down.

That Lingle was a racketeer and that he was killed by gangsters were generally accepted beliefs, but why was he killed and by whom?

Rewards totalling $55,725 have been offered for answers to the questions, the police force has been reorganized as a result of the slaying, gang resorts have been raided and many arrests made, the alleged payroll of a notorious gang has been seized, all Chicago has worked itself into a near frenzy over gangland's apparent defiance to law—but the mystery only grows the deeper.

The latest result of the reorganized police department's drive against gangland, a drive which resulted directly from the slaying—was the arrest late yesterday of Grover Dillard and nine other alleged members of the notorious George "Bugs" Moran gang.

Dillard has been sought almost since the hour that Lingle was shot in the back of the head on June 9 as he walked through an Illinois Central subway on his way to board a train to go to a race track.

He was suspected, the special "board of strategy" appointed to investigate the crime announced, of being the man who handed the gun to the actual slayer of the reporter. The Chicago Herald and Examiner today named him as "the man who watched and trailed Alfred Lingle, murdered Tribune reporter, and then pointed him out to the actual killer."

One theory which has been advanced in the Lingle murder was that the reporter used his influence with city officials to bring about raids upon Moran dives and that the gangsters "put him on the spot," believing it would allow them more freedom in carrying on their activities. Lingle's name also has been linked frequently since his death with that of Al Capone, notorious Moran rival. Associated with Dillard and his nine associates was a girl, Henrietta Smith, who was said to be bookkeeper for Moran. A ledger, which police said contained the Moran payroll, was thrown from a window as the officers entered, but it was recovered. The men were taken to the detective bureau and given a "show up" before persons who witnessed the Lingle slaying. No announcement was made by police or the board of strategy as to whether Dillard was identified by any of these witnesses.

Since his death, financial deals have been disclosed which have put Lingle in the character of a master racketeer, secretly using the name and influence of his employers to "borrow" money from both gangsters and officials. In reviewing the case today, the Tribune refers to Lingle as "being dubbed the 'unofficial' chief of police," called a fixer of gamblers, dog track promoters and gangsters' special privileges at the hands of police officials and politicians.

His alleged connection with any of these activities, newspapers have pointed out, might have provided someone with a motive for killing him.

So, today, it made little difference what theory was advanced or what arrests of "men who were there" were made, to the public the questions still remained: "Who killed Jake Lingle and why?"

Los Angeles, July 1.—A suspect in the murder of Jake Lingle, Chicago newspaper reporter, was believed under arrest here today, although police refused to divulge why they detained a man in an outlying jail and a young brunette woman in a downtown hotel. The man was arrested after detectives had watched an apartment house

MUSCLE SHOALS AND OTHER MEASURES SEEM TO BE SNARLED UP

SUBSTITUTE WORLD WAR VETERANS' PENSION BILL ALSO AN OBSTACLE

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, July 1.—An insurgent movement to make congress remain here all summer if necessary to clean up its legislative slate has been started in the senate by Senator George W. Norris, Nebraska, on Muscle Shoals and other disputed legislation which has been tied up in a legislative snarl.

What the movement will come probably will be determinable after the senate acts today on the substitute world war veterans' pension bill. If the senate adopts liberalized payment system objectionable to President Hoover, the resulting tangle may delay adjournment indefinitely.

If the house bill, carrying the Hoover ideas, succeeds over the pending Walsh-Connelly amendment, it will be passed almost unanimously and members of both houses will prepare to go home Thursday.

Norris is probably the most skilled parliamentarian in the senate and his judiciary committee now is reporting important bills which demand attention.

Three of the minor court procedure reforms planned by the Wickersham law enforcement commission may be reported today and Norris will demand that they be acted upon.

The house leaders have been able to stifle all the so-called insurgent legislation which has passed the senate this session. These reforms, including the resolution for eliminating short sessions of congress have been shoved aside by the administration leaders in the house on various grounds, and the senate has never yet had time to fight the matter out with them.

"There is no reason why we should not stay here and do the business of the senate in a legislative and high class manner," Norris said in a meeting on the legislative situation. "If senators have engagements they ought to be cancelled. I am practicing what I preach and am cancelling mine."

"We ought to run along all summer if necessary."

The regular leaders cannot make adjournment plans until the veterans legislation is disposed of. If they can pass a veterans' bill they figure they can defeat Norris. Senator Reed, republican, Penn., has announced he will keep the senate in session today until a final vote is reached on the veterans' measure.

Acting under suspension of rules the house moved onward to clean up as much legislation as can be passed before the expected adjournment later this week.

OLD MAN FACES CHARGES OF TRYING TO ROB A BANK

Red Wing, Minn., July 1.—(U.P.)—A mild-mannered old man sat in the Goodhue county jail today awaiting arraignment on a charge of attempting to hold up the State Bank of Stanton yesterday.

Smiling sadly, James Caldwell, 65, told visitors, "I wasn't ever in trouble before. The only times I ever came in contact with the law was when I served two 10-day sentences for drunkenness in Superior."

Caldwell was captured by the cashier of the Stanton bank who acted on a "hunch" and took the old man's empty gun away from him.

"I haven't any family," Caldwell said. "I just didn't know what to do. I didn't have any money so I thought I would hold up the bank and get some. But I didn't load the gun—I was afraid it might go off."

Only his manner and his grey hair indicates his age. Wearing the blue shirt and khaki trousers of the outdoor worker, Caldwell looked younger. His shoulders are tanned and his frame is wiry and sturdy. He is only about five feet, seven inches tall and weighs less than 150 pounds.

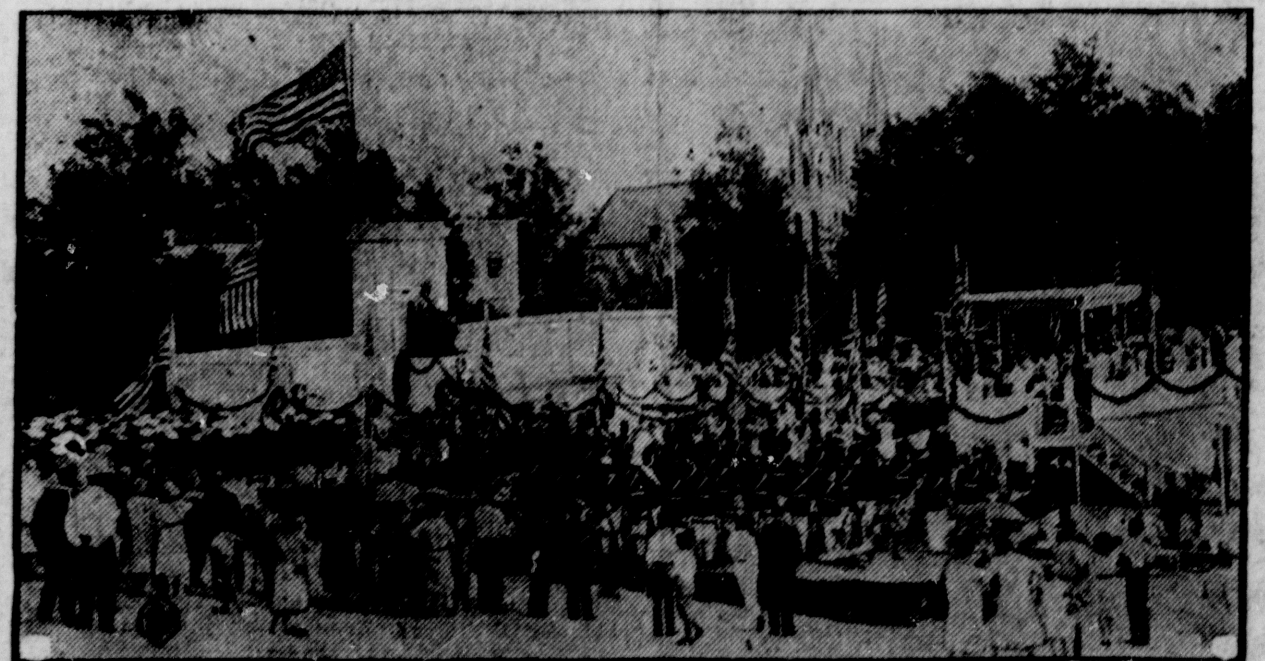

He said he had lived in Superior for many years until he left to look for work in Minnesota.

for several days. He was spirited to a precinct jail and held for questioning later today by district attorney's investigators. The woman was questioned for an hour in the prosecutor's offices and then returned to her hotel under a police matron's guard.

While police withheld details of the arrest they admitted two Chicago officials had been working with them for the last ten days. They promised more definite word after conversing again with the suspects.

It was reported that the woman was the wife of Frankie Foster, original owner of the gun used in the Lingle murder and now the object of a nationwide search. Secretiveness of the police was believed due to the large rewards offered for Lingle's slayer.

SECOND MYSTERY LETTER FROM 3XX

THREATENS DEATH TO NINE PERSONS IN PITTSBURGH

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 1. — (UP) — Threatening death to nine persons in Pittsburgh—the first victim scheduled to die in Schenley Park Wednesday night—a second mysterious letter signed "3XX," similar to the symbol used by the maniac killer of Queens Borough, New York, was received by the Pittsburgh Press today.

The latest note read: "I am out to revenge the death of my buddy 3X that wrote you a note not long ago. I shall kill (9) warn police. 1st victim at Schenley Park Wed. nite at 11 A. M. 3XX."

PYRE MYSTERY MURDER SUSPECT REMAINS QUIET

HAROLD HERBERT SCHRODER
CONTINUES TACITURN HABIT

INDIANAPOLIS OFFICERS SEEK TO UNRAVEL ALLEGED CRIME

Indianapolis, July 1.—(UP)—Harold Herbert Schroder of Mobile, Ala., remained silent today while Marion county authorities attempted to unravel the month-old Pyre mystery murder.

Investigators believed they had located the rooming houses where the Mobile business man spent his nights in Indianapolis while in the city from May 24 to 30 for the 500-mile race.

Although Schroder had maintained he stayed at a private residence near the race track throughout the six-day period, investigators today said certain evidence showed he had spent three nights in downtown Indianapolis. It was believed he remained at the house near the track for one night only.

It was thought that disclosure and investigation of Schroder's lodgings might lead to establishment of an accomplice and identity of the charred body found in the blazing car.

Authorities will confer today with a man who claims to have information concerning a large black sedan that was seen speeding past Schroder's burning auto the night of the crime, May 30.

Little but intimation of "important" tips that "probably would clear the case soon" was forthcoming from investigators, and some doubt was expressed as to the value of evidence said to have been uncovered.

SECOND MYSTERY LETTER FROM 3XX

THREATENS DEATH TO NINE PERSONS IN PITTSBURGH

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 1.—(UP)—Threatening death to nine persons in Pittsburgh—the first victim scheduled to die in Schenley Park Wednesday night—a second mysterious letter signed "3XX," similar to the symbol used by the maniac killer of Queens Borough, New York, was received by the Pittsburgh Press today.

Police and postal authorities after inspecting the letter showed concern. They fear it may have been written by a second maniac intent on duplicating the acts of New York's madman who took two lives and threatened 14 others with death.

The latest note read: "I am out to revenge the death of my buddy 3X who wrote you a note not long ago. I shall kill (9) warm police. 1st victim at Schenley Park Wed. nite at 11 A. M. 3XX."

Circle Postponed

PYRE MYSTERY MURDER SUSPECT REMAINS QUIET

HAROLD HERBERT SCHRODER
CONTINUES TACITURN HABIT

INDIANAPOLIS OFFICERS SEEK TO UNRAVEL ALLEGED CRIME

Indianapolis, July 1.—(UP)—Harold Herbert Schroder of Mobile, Ala., remained silent today while Marion county authorities attempted to unravel the month-old Pyre mystery murder.

Investigators believed they had located the rooming houses where the Mobile business man spent his nights in Indianapolis while in the city from May 24 to 30 for the 500-mile race.

Although Schroder had maintained he stayed at a private residence near the race track throughout the six-day period, investigators today said certain evidence showed he had spent three nights in downtown Indianapolis. It was believed he remained at the house near the track for one night only.

It was thought that disclosure and investigation of Schroder's lodgings might lead to establishment of an accomplice and identity of the charred body found in the blazing car.

Authorities will confer today with a man who claims to have information concerning a large black sedan that was seen speeding past Schroder's burning auto the night of the crime, May 30.

Little but intimation of "important" tips that "probably would clear the case soon" was forthcoming from investigators, and some doubt was expressed as to the value of evidence said to have been uncovered.

Score One for the Mature Boys

EVERY reader remembers the Osler pronouncement that men of mature years should be scrapped, in spite of the fact that history is full of instances of men who made their mark in business, arts, letters, war, etc., when past the flaming youth stage.

And now comes Dr. J. A. Britton, Chicago physician, appearing before the convention of American Medical association and according to the Associated Press report, said he believes American industry "makes a serious mistake in discarding a man when he reaches the age of 45."

"When this is done," Doctor Britton said, "the 10 years of a man's life in which he attains his maximum efficiency are being thrown away. The age of maximum efficiency begins at 35, and continues up to 55, and the greatest degree of efficiency is attained in the last 10 years."

"From the ages of 45 to 55, a man delivers more in judgment, stability and loyalty, and in every virtue except muscular agility and sheer muscular power. In professional baseball, for instance, a man, may not be worth much at 45, but even in baseball I have noticed that it takes the old heads to win the pennants."

The doctor forgot to add that a well preserved man of the fifties is in better shape to deal with business affairs than a burned out flaming youth who is old in the thirties.

Bank Your Money

BANK your money.

Keeping money at home, or in your office or place of business offers you no security. Any bank will be glad to take your cash holdings and if of sufficient volume, permit you to start a checking account.

In the home the old hiding places for money are known to every sneak thief. There is the time honored receptacle, the tea pot in the kitchen; under the rug in the living room; under the mattress in the bedroom; no place is secure from a sneak thief.

Doing business by check has evident advantages. The cancelled check serves as a receipt. You have a record of all your transactions. Having a checking account gives you a standing in your community.

You will find your bank can be of assistance in innumerable ways. If you have problems of investment, of sales, of savings, etc., your banker will be glad to give you advice. If you are tempted by some "get rich quick" scheme, see your bankers for advice and he will soon investigate and pass upon the proposition and save you money. A banker has wider experience in money matters and knows where safety lies in investments.

Pioneers in Many Things

ROSKO BROTHERS, a local automobile firm, have been pioneers in introducing many things in Brainerd. Years ago they brought in the first automobile, a "one-lunged" Rambler. They had the first radio, an R. C. A.

In recent years, they have introduced to Brainerd the first registered operating airport, which is bringing widespread publicity to Brainerd and will cause a wave of tourist travel by air to the airport and thence by automobile to the lake region. A noted figure in the sports world, K. M. Landis, czar of baseball, is expected to fly to Brainerd sometime this week and then to Breezy Point Lodge by automobile.

In order to further smoothe down the flying field Rosko Brothers have recently bought the first steam shovel in Brainerd. They will level down several small "rises" and use the soil to fill in places where needed. The shovel will be used in roadwork in the county and excavation jobs in Brainerd.

Advertising Brainerd

THE Arthur L. Roberts Hotel Company is doing much to advertise Brainerd in its literature and advertisements calling attention to the new Brainerd-Pine Beach hotel on Lower Gull Lake. The company is running newspaper advertising in many large papers of the Middle West and South.

Early in June the Grand Council of Wisconsin, United Commercial Travelers of America, met at Marinette, Wisconsin. As is customary, a large program book was issued, carrying text and advertisements. A full page was taken by the Arthur L. Roberts Hotel Company in which the traveling men were thanked for their patronage and a list given of 49 hotels operated.

The most space and attention was centered on "Brainerd-Pine Beach Hotel, on Gull Lake near Brainerd, Minnesota's Finest Summer Resort," as the script read.

CONTRACTS for 41 miles of paving were let by the Iowa high way commission on June 24. This will bring the Hawkeye state 1930 program to 1,014 miles, with a possibility that additional contracts will be let during the summer. Iowa had 2,317 miles of paving early in the year. By 1933 the paving will exceed 5,000 miles, and every county seat will have a paved highway.

A GOLF player's clubs are part of his very existence, yet in spite of that, Bobby Jones forgot his bag of paraphernalia which had landed him many a tournament and left it in the London hotel where he had been staying. Every player becomes accustomed to this or that club and the feel of it and cannot put up as good a game when he loses his clubs.

DR. ERNST FEDER, editor of the Berlin, Germany, Tageblatt, is visiting the United States in company with a group of journalists. But he just couldn't sit quiet. While in Omaha he "pounded the street" like any reporter who gets at the source of news, pounded out his copy and turned it in to the World-Herald.

It has been found that rain gauges do not operate as accurately on tops of high buildings as they do on the ground. The wind blows rain drops so slantingly around the elevated gauge that many of the drops fail to enter the receptacle.

ODD, sometimes, how castoffs of one ball team make good in another team. The change in batting no doubt results from changes in managerial guidance, and in new encouragement given the player.

DANCING KEEPS OFF OLD AGE, DAME SAYS

Octogenarian Teaches Others Youthful Steps.

Mill Valley, Calif.—For more than three-quarters of a century Mme. Harriet Foreman Emrick has danced—danced the years away, danced old age away.

For more than half a century she has been teaching others to dance—to dance and stay young.

Today, at eighty, Mme. Emrick is still dancing every day, teaching others to dance, including her two great-grandchildren. She is still youthful, graceful as a wisp of rising smoke—and happy!

Still Ambitious.

For the soldiers of America in three wars, the Civil, Spanish and World wars, Mme. Emrick has danced gratis. It is her one ambition now to dance once again, for the last time in public, before what remains of the Civil war veterans, for the Spanish-American veterans and for the American Legion, all together.

She is a sweet and gracious old lady, this octogenarian, who still teaches the dance to young and old in her Mill Valley studio. She has classes every day and is assisted by her daughter, who was known to the stage as "Clarissa, the Dancer," and by her granddaughter, known as "Georgine." Her two great-grandchildren, Harvey and Helen Jean, are her regular pupils.

And lest it be thought that Mme. Emrick teaches only the graceful, stately movements of bygone generations, let it be emphasized that she can tap dance with the best of them and toddle a wicked jazz number with any of the shiks or shobas.

Born in 1850.

"The dance is a part of the religion of the body," declares Mme. Emrick. "I call myself the priestess of that religion which I originated."

Mme. Emrick has trained scores who have made a mark upon the stage and ballet. She was born in Fort Madison, Iowa, in 1850. She first began to teach the dance more than fifty years ago in Portland, Ore.

Boyhood Friends Meet Again as Bank Chiefs

Hardin, Mont.—A boyhood friendship which spanned a half century of silence and separation was renewed here recently when two bank presidents clasped hands and exchanged reminiscences.

As a boy Charles Helmer, now president of the First National bank of Twin Falls, Idaho, lived at the Wisconsin home of W. E. Warren, now president of the Big Horn bank of Hardin. The youths became fast friends, but when necessity of making a living brought separation they soon lost track of each other.

When Helmer called Warren by long distance telephone on business, the latter immediately recognized the mature voice on the wire as that of his boyhood pal, and the reunion followed.

Employ Flame Guns to Kill Locusts by Tons

Cairo.—The Egyptian government is meeting this year's locust menace by making war on these enemies of the country. Already nearly 300 tons of locusts have been killed by flame guns in the Sinai peninsula.

So far the attempts of the swarms to reach the fertile Nile valley have been fruitless. A big battle was fought at Kantara, where the slaughter amounted to eleven tons and another big swarm was overwhelmed, like Pharaoh's host, in the Red sea, near Suez.

The danger now is that swarms have been breeding in the Sinai peninsula, and the young are likely to be hatched shortly.

U. S. Women Swindled of $700,000,000 in 1929

Chicago.—Activities of women financiers were outlined today at the Executive club by Howard E. Reed, a Pittsburgh financier. He stated:

"Eighty-five per cent of all salaries in the country are spent by women. Last year feminine financiers invested $700,000,000 in fraudulent securities. It is the fault of their husbands, brothers, sons and fathers, who do not take time to teach them sound finances."

"They further purchased on the installment plan depreciated luxuries of little value to them and cut down their savings by $150,000,000."

Volcano-Made Charcoal Warms Alaska People

Kodiak, Alaska.—Charcoal forests left in the wake of the ash storm from the eruption of Mt. Katmai in 1912 yielded an excellent fuel for island residents this winter.

Whole forests were buried in red hot sand and ash and the wood turned into charcoal. Trees one foot in diameter are completely charred through. Uncovered and broken into small pieces, it is found to be acceptable fuel.

Turtle Has 2 Heads

New Athens, Ill.—Louis Wiget, of this city, is the possessor of a two-headed turtle, which he has preserved in alcohol. The turtle was caught at a clubhouse near here some time ago. It is about the size of a 50-cent piece and is perfectly formed except for the double head.

HOME LIFE IN ANTARCTICA WITH THE BYRD EXPEDITION

STEAM-HEATED city dwellers who complain that their janitors begrudge fuel to the furnace would have suffered a tragic experience as members of Admiral Byrd's base party at Little America, in the shadow of the South Pole.

The "janitor" of the expedition, if there had been one, would have been confronted by a hundred and one climatic vagaries, not the least of which was a drop in temperature of 62 degrees in a single day. This particular freak was caused by the wind shifting around completely from North to South, from which direction the most frigid breezes blew.

Cameraman VanderVeer in his South Polar upper berth.

Willard VanderVeer and Joseph Rucker, official cameramen of the expedition, suffered particularly from sudden changes of temperature, because of the delicate mechanism of their photographic equipment and the danger of impairing clearness of their precious film because of a friction product known to their trade as "static," which scars the celluloid with jagged flashes which resemble lightning on the screen.

Frequent temperatures of 70 below and worse froze the oil in the cameras, and required that VanderVeer and Rucker grind down all parts by hand one-thousandth of an inch, to allow freer play, and then lubricate with special white oil, which was found to be practically impervious to the cold because of its inherent physical properties.

The radio reported one day a difference in temperature of 197 degrees between the Little America base camp and New York City. The respective marks were 95 above and 72 below zero.

Unlike knowing commercial travelers, the more acute members of the expedition chose upper berths for sleeping when the party moved into its quarters in Little America. The temperature in the huts between the lower bunk and the upper bunk near the ceiling would vary as much as 30 degrees. Often, at retiring time, the amusing spectacle would occur of the upstairs tenant lying awake reading, his head uncovered and his sleeping bag beside him, while the ground-floor inhabitant was wrapped in his sleeping bag, bundled into a miscellany of warm-giving wrappers and wearing a hat to protect his ears from the nipping cold.

Sleeping bags in more moderate climates are often worn over the head.

the occupant practically hibernating for the night. This was impractical in the shadow of the South Pole, since any moisture in the bag would have produced a feeling of tremendous discomfort which could not be offset by bodily heat.

It was the practically unanimous feeling that the toughest part of the day was the rising hour. Getting accustomed to the cold after the warmth of a sleeping bag was a dismal job at best, and many members of the party found they could not articulate arms and legs properly for many minutes after first assuming the vertical attitude in the morning.

© Paramount

Proper sleep, even though followed by the horrible necessity of arising in the morning, was important to the morale of the band. Warmth and comparative comfort in a shelter while the wind rages at 150 miles an hour in a snow-covered prairie just outside the door can breed a sense of security and peace which nothing else can impart. Few of the expeditionaries had difficulty in getting to sleep at night. A hard day of snow-shoveling, followed by perhaps a dozen other chores, would have been sufficient to counteract almost any kind of sleep deterrent. Yet Admiral Byrd, with his usual and characteristic foresight, had provided for the men with particularly nerve-racking and precise jobs a quantity of decaffeinated coffee, which removed the accepted hazard of coffee drinking before retiring. Because of the successive stimulation and depression periods induced by ordinary coffee, the expedition leader had foreseen that it might be wise to provide the beverage in its caffeine-less form for the use of the men who had especially trying and exacting jobs, such as tuning up the huge tri-motored all-metal monoplane with which the second polar triumph was accomplished.

The sleep of the upper-berth tenant was occasionally jeopardized by snowstorms which made their way through the ventilators. Often, the upstairs tenant would wake to find himself inundated by snow forced through the vents by the high and eccentric winds. In "summer" there was another disadvantage. Sudden thaws would melt the snow and flood the sleeper. All in all, it was calculated at the end of the experience, upper and lower tenants fared about equally well.

RUTH CONFIDENT HE WILL BREAK HIS HOME RUN RECORD

"IF THEY ONLY
KEEP PITCHING
TO ME," SAYS HE

"THIS HOT WEATHER IS JUST WHAT I LIKE," SAID THE BAMBINO

WILL KEEP BUSTING THEM IF HE GETS THEM ANYWHERE

NEAR THE PLATE
By GEORGE KIRKSEY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, July 1.—"If they keep pitching to me I'll break my home run record easy," Babe Ruth told the United Press today.

"This hot weather is just what I like, and I'll keep busting 'em as long as they keep getting 'em anywhere
near the plate."

With 15 homers during June, Ruth had a total of 30 today and was 12 days and 12 games ahead of his 1927 schedule, the year in which he made his record of sixty.

In only one month, September, 1927, since he started hitting homers as a pitcher with the Boston Red Sox in 1915, has Ruth ever made more than 15 circuit drives in a single month. He hit 17 in the last month of 1927 to break his 1921 record of 59 by the margin of one homer.

Ruth did not hit No. 30 in 1927 until July 12 and No. 31 did not come until July 24. If Ruth continues his present pace, he can tie his record in his 134th game, and still have 20 games left in which to create a new record.

Ruth is now ahead or tied with his schedule in every year. In 1928 he ended the month of June with 30 homers, but slumped in August and closed the year with 54.

Ruth's 30th homer was made off Al
Thomas, Chicago White Sox right-hander, in the 7th inning yesterday with two mates on base. The drive traveled far into the right field bleachers.

A comparison of Ruth's 1930 and 1927
records follows:

THIRD 'JIMMY VALENTINE' THEFT IN MINNEAPOLIS

Minneapolis, July 1.—(U.P.)—Police today chalked up the third "Jimmy Valentine" robbery in a week and threatened to call in Sherlock Holmes or Hawshaw or somebody if the thing keeps up.

The gentleman with the sandpapered finger tips early today broke into the Norris creameries, gave the dial of the safe a few twirls and escaped with $1,650.

More than $2,000 had been obtained in two similar robberies a few days ago. The three jobs were similar, police said. No finger prints were found, but fingerprint experts found a strand of silk, indicating the "Jimmy" wore silk gloves.

HENLEY REGATTA OPENS TOMORROW

QUIET VILLAGE HENLEY-ON- THAMES FILLING WITH VISITORS

Henley-on-Thames, Eng., July 1.—
(U.P.)—In the quiet old English village of Henley, the streets were filled again today with visitors who have journeyed here to see the start of the annual Royal Henley regatta, which opens tomorrow.

Five foreign crews entered in the competition for the Thames cup and three foreign scullers again will make the regatta an international affair.

In 1839, 91 years ago, the first Henley regatta was held. Since then oarsmen from all parts of the world have come here annually to compete in the internationally known fete.

This year more than 100 individuals and crews have entered. Tomorrow morning the first trial events of the regatta will be held. Eliminations also will be conducted on Thursday and Friday, with the finals scheduled for Saturday.

Two crews looked upon with favor are the Kent school eight of Massachusetts, and Princeton university.
Both United States crews are entered for the Thames cup which is held by the Browne and Nichols school of the United States. Among the British crews are crack eights from the London Rowing club, Leader's and the Thames Rowing club.

FORMER PROHIBITION DEPARTMENT ACE IS UNDER ARREST

Chicago, July 1.—(U.P.)—James Fern, who until a month ago was an ace of the prohibition department here, was under arrest today, charged with being implicated in the theft of thousands of dollars worth of confiscated whisky from a government warehouse.

Fern was arrested at the Roma Inn, where a squad of detectives found about $30,000 worth of Indian Hill and Gold Medal whisky which they said was part of the supply stolen early Monday from the warehouse by a gang of from 10 to 15 men who overcame
the guard and carted the liquor away in trucks.

Paul Perry, the guard who was in charge of the warehouse when the whisky was stolen, was recommended yesterday for suspension by Assistant Prohibition Administrator George Hurlburt.

California, met decisive defeat.

Miss Phyllis Mudford of England, 6-1, 6-2, and Miss Elizabeth Ryan, formerly of California, defeated Miss Betty Nuthall of England, 6-2, 2-6, 6-0.

Fraulein Cilly Aussem of Germany

PASTOR THREATENED, POLICE GUARD HOME

New York, July 1.—(U.P.)—A police guard was established today over the home of the Rev. J. V. Cooper, pastor of the Immanuel Baptist church in Brooklyn, after he had received a second letter, threatening death, and signed by "3X."

Police were inclined to believe the letter was the work of a crank and not of the maniac who killed Noel Sowley and Joseph Mozyzsky in lonely sections of Queens Borough.

Several days ago Cooper received a package containing a hemp rope tied into a hangman's noose, accompanied by a note advising him to "do it now."
Today Brooklyn police made public the second note received by the minister.

MAJOR LEAGUE FIGURES HAVE FAMILIAR LOOK

CUBS BOUND ALONG THOUGH CRIPPLED BY LOSS OF TWO OF THEIR STARS

EQUAL PACE THEY SET LAST YEAR, NOW ENJOYING A LARGER LEAD
(By United Press)

Major league standings presented a familiar aspect today with the Chicago Cubs and Philadelphia Athletics, 1929 pennant winners and favorites in the current race, heading their respective leagues.

Although crippled by the loss of Hal Carlson and Rogers Hornsby and injuries to other stars, the Cubs have equalled the pace set in 1929 and now enjoy a larger lead than they held at this stage of last year's campaign.

The Athletics are .090 points below their July 1 percentage in 1929 and with New York, Washington and Cleveland furnishing unexpectedly stiff opposition, are in a much less favorable position than at this time a year ago.

The Cubs lengthened their National League lead by half a game yesterday, defeating the New York Giants, 10 to 3, while the second place Brooklyn
Robins were rained out at St. Louis.
The Cubs pounded Genewich and Mitchell for 8 runs in the first inning and Fred Blake held the Giants sluggers in check. The defeat dropped New York to a tie with St. Louis for third place.

Boston beat Pittsburgh, 6 to 5, in the only other National League game and regained fifth place from the Pirates. Richbourg's single with the bases filled in the eighth drove in the tying and winning runs.

The Philadelphia Athletics rallied to score three in the eighth and gave Ed Rommel a 3 to 1 victory over the Detroit Tigers. Vic Sorrell blanked the champions for the first seven innings.

"Fip" Marberry held St. Louis to 4 hits and laid down a perfect bunt with the bases filled in the ninth to drive in the run which gave Washington a 2 to 1 victory over the Browns.
Babe Ruth's 30th home run of the season featured the New York Yankees' 15 to 3 victory over the last place Chicago White Sox.

Cleveland scored five runs in the eighth inning to break a tie and defeated the Boston Red Sox, 8 to 3. Hodapp started a rally with a homer which scored Averill ahead of him.

American Association Taps
Kansas City, July 1.—Ed Pick socked
a homer over the right field wall
—a feat that had been accomplished only twice before—and brought two runners in ahead of him yesterday to enable the Kansas City Blues to score an 8 to 5 victory over Toledo.

St. Paul, July 1.—Aided by two home runs from the bat of Third Baseman Hopkins, St. Paul defeated Indianapolis here yesterday, 7 to 6, running its string of victories to six.

Milwaukee, July 1.—Gathering 16 hits, Milwaukee defeated Columbus 7 to 2 here yesterday. First Baseman Stanton got four singles in four times at bat.

Minneapolis, July 1.—The league-leading Louisville Colonels dropped the third straight game to Minneapolis here yesterday, 11 to 8. Louisville scored five runs in the fifth inning, but Minneapolis came right back and scored six.

The Old Curry-Comb by A. J. Dunlap

The tapping of the curry-comb
Foretold another day
Of labor in the fields of corn,
Or meadows rich with hay.
It told of tangled manes made straight,
Of sweaty coats made clean,
Of breakfast for the sorrel colts,
Old Dolly, Pet and Queen.

It was an unassuming thing
About the dear old home,
But still it served the old farm well—
The old bent curry-comb.
It sang a song of cheerfulness
To horses and to men,
I would my jaded soul could hear
Its music once again.

Sharkey's Foul Fate

By HARDIN BURNLEY

THERE must be considerable aluminum and rubber and air in fistiana's greatest shriilly: "Stay down, Max; stay down!"

A broken "cup" usually is exhibited afterwards while a physician or two avers that there was evidence of a foul blow visible to the eye or a microscope.

Technically, any blow—even a tap—below the belt disqualifies its deliverer.
The climax of fistiana's foul foibles came when Schmeling missed a left hook that Sharkey definitely ducked under. Max naturally moved forward rising on his toes. Jack's hook was perfectly planned on the instant, but Max did not stand where he was or back-pedal. He lurched forward on his toes and this cut the arc of the hook so Jack's upward shot glanced off the upper inside of Schmeling's left leg, grazed the chest, and finally banged the Ger-man's jaw.

In theory and practice the victim of a foul punch should not be hurt much when wearing a protector, but—down they go, grimacing pain, as Phil Scott did at New York City and Miami last Winter.
Schmeling did the same, while his

Max sank to the floor registering extreme pain. Sharkey insists the shot reached the pit of the stomach for a real K. O., but one of the judges and many other neutrals saw that look clip the Ger-man's leg.

Whether or not that leg wallop justified Schmeling's painful reactions will be disputed forever, especially by those who "know their protectors," and approximately how much such blows really hurt.

At any event, Max won the title.
He says he may fight Sharkey
next year.

"Don't get up, Mox; don't get up!" That "smot" Jacobean cry should wake Sharkey from nightmares for the rest of his life or—until he gets another crack at the crown which now resembles a fist dent cap!

RUTH CONFIDENT HE WILL BREAK HIS HOME RUN RECORD

"IF THEY ONLY KEEP PITCHING TO ME," SAYS HE

"THIS HOT WEATHER IS JUST WHAT I LIKE," SAID THE BAMBINIO

WILL KEEP BUSTING THEM IF HE GETS THEM ANYWHERE NEAR THE PLATE

By GEORGE KIRKSEY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, July 1.—"If they keep pitching to me I'll break my home run record easy," Babe Ruth told the United Press today.

"This hot weather is just what I like, and I'll keep busting 'em as long as they keep getting 'em anywhere near the plate."

With 15 homers during June, Ruth had a total of 30 today and was 12 days and 12 games ahead of his 1927 schedule, the year in which he made his record of sixty.

In only one month, September, 1927, since he started hitting homers as a pitcher with the Boston Red Sox in 1915, has Ruth ever made more than 15 circuit drives in a single month. He hit 17 in the last month of 1927 to break his 1921 record of 59 by the margin of one homer.

Ruth did not hit No. 30 in 1927 until July 12 and No. 31 did not come until July 24. If Ruth continues his present pace, he can tie his record in his 134th game, and still have 20 games left in which to create a new record.

Ruth is now ahead or tied with his schedule in every year. In 1928 he ended the month of June with 30 homers, but slumped in August and closed the year with 54.

Ruth's 30th homer was made off Al Thomas, Chicago White Sox right-hander, in the 7th inning yesterday with two mates on base. The drive traveled far into the right field bleachers.

A comparison of Ruth's 1930 and 1927 records follows:

Year	Home	Date	Season's Total
1927	30	July 12	79
1930	30	June 30	67

THIRD 'JIMMY VALENTINE' THEFT IN MINNEAPOLIS

Minneapolis, July 1.—(U.P.)—Police today chalked up the third "Jimmy Valentine" robbery in a week and threatened to call in Sherlock Holmes or Hawkshaw or somebody if the thing keeps up.

The gentleman with the sand-paired finger tips early today broke into the Norris creameries, gave the dial of the safe a few twirls and escaped with $1,650.

More than $2,000 had been obtained in two similar robberies a few days ago. The three jobs were similar, police said. No finger prints were found, but fingerprint experts found a strand of silk, indicating the "Jimmy" wore silk gloves.

Sharkey's Foul Fate

By HARDEN BURNLEY

THERE must be considerable aluminum and rubber and air in fistiana's greatest crown now that it is being worn by Max Schmeling of Germany, who quite properly was awarded the world's heavyweight championship when it was decided that he had been hit low near the end of the fourth round of a smart boxing lesson from Jack Sharkey in New York City on June 12.

The aluminum and rubber and air might as well go in the crown now, for they would seem to be of little effect in the protectors employed to save boxers from incapacitation when struck hard below the belt.

In theory and practice the victim of a foul punch should not be hurt much when wearing a protector, but—down they go, grimacing pain, as Phil Scott did at New York City and Miami last Winter. Schmeling did the same, while his manager, Joe Jacobs, exhorted shrilly: "Stay down, Max; stay down!"

A broken "cup" usually is exhibited afterwards while a physician or two avers that there was evidence of a foul blow visible to the eye or a microscope.

Technically, any blow—even a tap—below the belt disqualifies its deliverer.

The climax of fistiana's foul follies came when Schmeling missed a left hook that Sharkey deftly ducked under. Max naturally moved forward rising on his toes. Jack's hook was perfectly planned on the instant, but Max did not stand where he was or back-pedal. He lurched forward on his toes and this cut the arc of the hook so Jack's upward shot glanced off the upper inside of Schmeling's left leg, grazed the chest, and finally banged the German's jaw.

COUNTY FREE FROM BOND INDEBTEDNESS

Auditor Issues Warrant for $25,000 to Redeem Last of $100,000
Rail Bonds

FINANCIAL YOKE REMOVED

County Burdened for 48 Years, Interest on Bonds Paid
Totalled $184,900

County Auditor C. W. Mahlum today issued his warrant on the county treasury for $25,000.00 to redeem the last of the $100,000.00 railroad bonds issued in 1882 to aid the Brainerd and Northern Minnesota Ry. Co. to construct its road from Brainerd to Gilpatrick Lake in Cass county and which is now a part of the Minnesota and International system.

Today should be a red letter day in the annals of the county. It should stand out in history as the day the county threw off a yoke it has carried for 48 years.

A brief resume of the aforesaid bond issue as related by Mr. Mahlum follows:

In 1882, Crow Wing county issued its bonds in amount $100,000.00 bearing interest at 6 per cent payable in 20 years for the purpose as stated before of aiding the Brainerd and Northern Minnesota Ry. Co. to construct its line to the north of Brainerd.

No provision was made for retiring the bonds and in 1912 when they became due the money for their payment was received from the state on a refunding issue at 4 per cent payable $5,000.00 each year 1923 to 1931 and $55,000.00 in 1932.

A sinking fund was created and as the bonds matured they were paid and in 1927 when $75,000.00 remained unpaid, the County Board decided to levy $25,000.00 each year for the following three years and did so and by paying off the bonds before maturity, affected a saving of $5,000.00 to the county in interest.

The interest paid during the life of the above bonds totals $184,900.00, almost twice the amount of the principal.

Other bond issues in the history of the county and paid mainly during the present administration are as follows:

$30,000.00 7 per cent old court house bonds issued in 1882, refunded at 4 per cent in 1902 and paid in 1927.

$15,000.00 8 per cent old court house bonds issued in 1883, refunded at 4 per cent in 1903 and paid $1,000.00 each year 1908 to 1912, $5,000.00 in 1917 and $5,000.00 in 1922.

$50,000.00 6 per cent bridge bonds for the construction of the bridge across the Mississippi river at Laurel street in the City of Brainerd, issued in 1886, refunded at 4 per cent in 1906 and paid $2,000.00 each year 1911 to 1918, $4,000.00 in 1919 and $30,000.00 in 1920.

$55,000.00 4 per cent funding bonds issued in 1899 to pay the floating indebtedness of the county were paid in 1919.

$179,000.00 5 per cent short term certificates of indebtedness for the completion of the new court house were issued in 1921, the last of which were redeemed in 1926.

When the financial condition of our neighboring counties is considered, Cass county with its $600,000.00 bonded debt, Aitkin county $400,000.00 and Morrison county, $200,000.00, one will note that Crow Wing county is in excellent condition financially with its freedom from bonded debt, its new court house and fine system of roads and bridges all paid for.

Simple Blackboard

Blackboards of any size are usually quite expensive, but one woman found a way to make one that costs less than 75 cents. She bought an inexpensive dark-green window shade and a can of flat black paint. Two coats of the paint were applied to the shade, which when dry became a blackboard that could be rolled up out of the way when not in use.

Mrs. Grandelmyer's room is also about ready and she will move her millinery stock there in a very short time.

The property owners on the south side of Front street between Eighth and Tenth have decided that they need cement sidewalks, so without waiting for the city fathers to order one they have started the good work. City Engineer Woolman was busy yesterday giving them the lines and grade. It is a much needed improvement and will enhance the value of property in these blocks.

The officials of the First National bank held their semi-annual meeting yesterday and declared their usual dividend. The sum of $5,000 was passed to the surplus fund, raising it from $35,000 to $40,000. This makes the combined capital and surplus $90,000, showing Brainerd to have one of the strongest financial institutions in the northern part of Minnesota. President LaBar and his associates are to be congratulated on the excellent showing made.

A large number of prominent political and business men from towns up the M. & N. came down today to assist in the last sad rites of Sheriff George F. Hardy of Walker. The services took place this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the M. E. church, followed by interment at the Evergreen cemetery. The funeral was held under the auspices of the Elks and their beautiful service was given at the grave. Rev. Kuhl, pastor of the People's Congregational church, preached the sermon. BURGLARS HIDE IN STORE, BREAK OUT

Make Escape Through Back Door
After Robbing Frank and

Breakins seem to be out of style. In the last two robberies in Brainerd burglars did not break into establishments to steal but broke out after taking what they wanted.

Last night burglars are believed to have hidden in the Frank and James store, Front street while employees locked up. They pilfered the cash register of $12.85 in small change and made their escape through the back door.

HER FATHER'S
AX

Bertha, Minn., July 1.—(UP)—Her skull crushed by an ax blow from her father, Ruth McConnell, 14, was dying in a field hospital here today, physicians said.

The father, Howard R. McConnell, struck the girl Sunday and then committed suicide by hanging. Physicians said today that the girl was gradually growing weaker and that there was no chance for her recovery.

The ax blade pierced her skull and entered the brain. Her mind was fading today and she was sinking into a coma.

McConnell was thought to have been depressed by the death of his wife 14 months ago.

A neighbor found the body of McConnell and the wounded daughter.

Simple Blackboard

Blackboards of any size are usually quite expensive, but one woman found a way to make one that costs less than 75 cents. She bought an inexpensive dark-green window shade and a can of flat black paint. Two coats of the paint were applied to the shade, which when dry became a blackboard that could be rolled up out of the way when not in use.

BRAINERD 25 Years Ago

July 1, 1905

A. V. Snyder is the first to occupy one of the new store rooms in the new Sheriff Bailey of Bemidji, and when he gets settled will have a very handsome place of business. He has had his fixtures brightened up thoroughly and everything looks spick and span there. C. L. Burnett has a complete set of new antique oak fixtures and will get them in place and move in a few days. Mrs. Grandelmyer's room is also about ready and she will move her millinery stock there in a very short time.

The property owners on the south side of Front street between Eighth and Tenth have decided that they need cement sidewalks, so without waiting for the city fathers to order one they have started the good work. City Engineer Woodman was busy yesterday giving them the lines and grade. It is a much needed improvement and will enhance the value of property in these blocks.

The officials of the First National bank held their semi-annual meeting yesterday and declared their usual dividend. The sum of $5,000 was passed to the surplus fund, raising it from $35,000 to $40,000. This makes the combined capital and surplus $90,000, showing Brainerd to have one of the strongest financial institutions in the northern part of Minnesota. President LaBar and his associates are to be congratulated on the excellent showing made.

A large number of prominent political and business men from towns up the M. & N. came down today to assist in the last sad rites of Sheriff George F. Hardy of Walker. The services took place this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the M. E. church, followed by interment at the Evergreen cemetery. The funeral was held under the auspices of the Elks and their beautiful service was given at the grave. Rev. Kuhl, pastor of the People's Congregational church, preached the sermon. Among those present from out of town were Messrs. Charles Kinkade, A. L. Cole, Messrs. Charles Knudsen, A. L. Cole, and M. J. Quam of Walker.

BURGLARS HIDE IN STORE, BREAK OUT

Make Escape Through Back Door
After Robbing Frank and
James Store of $12.85

Breakins seem to be out of style. In the last two robberies in Brainerd burglars did not break into establishments to steal but broke out after taking what they wanted.

Last night burglars are believed to have hidden in the Frank and James store, Front street while employees locked up. They pilfered the cash register of $12.85 in small change and made their escape through the back door.

BERTHA GIRL IS FATALLY INJURED

SKULL CRASHED BY BLOW FROM HER FATHER'S
AX

Bertha, Minn., July 1.—(AP)—Her skull crushed by an ax blow from her father, Ruth McConnell, 14, was dying in a field hospital here today, physicians said.

The father, Howard R. McConnell, struck the girl Sunday and then committed suicide by hanging. Physicians said today that the girl was gradually growing weaker and that there was no chance for her recovery.

The ax blade pierced her skull and entered the brain. Her mind was fading today and she was sinking into a coma.

McConnell was thought to have been depressed by the death of his wife 14 months ago.

A neighbor found the body of McConnell and the wounded daughter.

"WHERE'S EMILY?"

by CAROLYN WELLS

WHAT HAS HAPPENED BEFORE

JUST before the rehearsal of her marriage to Rodney Sayre, Emily Duane leaves her exclusive Hilldale Park home to visit the hospital. She does not return and Rod and the guests become concerned. They are more perplexed when Jim Pennington, husband of Emily's best friend, Pauline, informs them that his wife, with whom he left the rehearsal about the same time as Emily, has also disappeared. Upon phoning the hospital, it is learned Emily never reached there.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER IX.

AND then the crowd from the drawing-room came back to the lounge.

"Where's Emily?" said most of the voices as the two men were seen there alone.

"I don't know," Sayre returned, but his smile was a little forced.

"You don't know, sir?" The Rehearsal stepped up to him with a decided scowl on his face.

"I know you, mister, that though I have never had a wedding rehearsal, I have been so insulted as at this one! Called to take charge of a large and fashionable wedding and finding no bride and no bridegroom at hand! What sort of game is this? Why are the principals absent? I think there will be no wedding! But I have done my part, and I shall expect my pay. I will not come again; no, not though you beg me to, I will not set foot in the place. But I expect my pay—"

"Good Lord, man, you'll get your pay," exclaimed Lamb. "Now, run along home, for mercy's sake. I give you my word your bill shall be paid. Clear out."

Lamb paused to light a cigarette and then turned to Rodney.

"Where's Emily?" he said.

"I don't know, Burt," and now Sayre spoke very soberly. "She told me she was going to the hospital—"

"To kiss the new baby," broke in Betty Bailey. "Then she's there yet. I'll go and call her."

"No, Betty," Sayre deterred her. "We've called—Mr. Pennington called, and they haven't been there—"

"Who's they?" demanded Lamb. "Who's with her?"

"We don't know for certain," Pennington volunteered, "but my wife isn't at home, or wasn't when I left, and we think the two may be together."

"They haven't been to the hospital!" exclaimed Betty, her eyes opening wide. "Then something has happened to them—"

"Don't make a scene, Betty," Nell Harding said scornfully. "They're all right, of course. Emily went over to Mrs. Pennington's house and is waiting there for her to dress—"

"That may be," Pennington said. "Polly wasn't there when I left, but she may have come in since. I'll telephone over and see."

He went to the booth, and Pete Gibby went and sat down by Rodney, who was still on the sofa.

"Emily said she was going to the hospital?" he asked.

"Yes," said Sayre.

"And the hospital people say she didn't come there?"

"That's what they say."

"Then we must go out and look for her. Good heavens, man, we must do something! Suppose she fell and sprained her ankle—the roads round here are steep and sticky enough. How can you sit here, not knowing where she is?"

"She told me to stay here till she came back," Sayre said, and even as he spoke, he realized how silly he sounded! To be sure, Emily's word was law to him, but to the crowd he must appear like a driving idiot to sit there, saying, "She told me not to budge."

Just then, Pennington returned. "Polly isn't at home," he said, and now he looked concerned.

"Rosa, that's the maid, says she hasn't seen home at all."

"Then," said Betty, who was a quick thinker, "she met Emily, and Emily told her about the baby, and they went to the hospital together—"

"But they haven't been to the hospital."

"I mean, they started for there, and then—"

"And then?" Lamb prompted her.

"And then, either Emily had one of her wild, impulsive schemes to go somewhere else, or else—something has happened."

"What could happen?" asked Nell, scornfully. "Emily is too used to these steep and stony roads to turn her ankle. She's been racing over them all her life."

"It might happen," said Gibby.

"Oh, of course, it might," Nell agreed. "And a bear might come out of the woods and eat her up! But I don't believe either of those things. And, too, if Polly Penninghim. "They're together, I'm sure, and that makes it safe for both. I suppose Emily took a notion to run down to New York—"

"Betty! How absurd!" cried Aunt Judy. "Why should the child go to New York at seven o'clock at night?"

But the three men and Betty had already started on their quest.

Mr. Garner, seeing an opportunity, took his cue.

"My dear Mrs. Bell," he said with his most funeral intonation, "keep up your courage—"

"It hasn't gone down yet," she snapped back at him. "Anybody would think Emily was in danger of wild beasts or bandits or something! Did you ever hear of marauders of any sort at Hilldale Park?"

"No, I never did," and the Reverend Garner seemed to begrudge his acquiescence.

Nell Harding had ensconced herself on the sofa beside Sayre, and proceeded to comfort him.

This was about as acceptable to Rodney as the minister's sympathy had been to Aunt Judy, but he couldn't retort as he would have liked.

"Oh, Emily's all right, Nell, of course," he said pleasantly. "I "Come in here, will you Pearl?" said Rod.

ton was with her, and Emily met with any accident, Polly would come and tell us. I can't think they both sprained their ankles!"

"Speculation won't get us anywhere," said Lamb. "As I'm attending to all the wedding arrangements, it's up to me to find the missing bride. So, I'll set about it. Want to go along, Rod?"

"No," said Sayre, after a moment's pause. "I'll stay here. Not only because Emily told me to stay here till she came back, but because Pete will go with you, and if there has been an accident, which I don't for a minute believe, you two can bring her home."

"I'm going along," cried Betty, and flinging a cape around her she stood by Pete Gibby.

Pennington rose to go, as a matter of course, and Betty's quick sympathy sensed that he was as anxious about his wife as Rod was about Emily.

HISTORY'S MYSTERIES

Unsolved Mysteries That Still Puzzle Authorities Here and Abroad

Without a Clue

IT WAS on Christmas night, in 1910, that the first news was made public of what is probably the most baffling and mysterious disappearance of its kind in the police annals of the United States—the unexplained and apparently insoluble vanishing of Dorothy Harriet Camille Arnold, the daughter of Francis R. Arnold, a wealthy importer.

The facts in the case were few and utterly devoid of sensationalism, thus making the climax stand out with all the force and contrast of lightning against a pitch black sky. On the morning of December 12, thirteen days before any inkling of the affair reached the newspapers, Miss Arnold had left her home at 108 East Seventy-ninth street, New York, supposedly for a morning's shopping. She was in the best of health and spirits and, among the errands which she intended to do, was the purchasing of a dress at one of the Fifth avenue shops. As soon as she found what she wanted she was to call her mother on the telephone and the final decision would then be made.

The thorough and searching investigations of the police and the reporters later developed the fact that Miss Arnold had walked from her home to a store at Fifth avenue and Fifty-ninth street, where she purchased a box of candy, which she charged to her personal account. The sales check showed that it was about noon when she left the store and, some two hours later, she was at Brentano's book store, Fifth avenue and Twenty-seventh street, where she bought a book which she stated was to be given away as a Christmas present.

Just as she was leaving Brentano's, Miss Arnold met a woman friend and, in response to the usual question as to how she was feeling, replied: "I never felt better in my life," and then, as she was leaving, she added: "I'm going to walk home through Central park. Want to join me?" But the friend declined and Miss Arnold continued on her way—never again to be heard of. Had the friend accompanied her it is possible that one of the greatest mysteries of modern times might never have occurred but, as it happened, Dorothy Arnold went on alone and vanished.

Wishing to avoid publicity as much as possible, the Arnold family purposely suppressed the news of their daughter's disappearance until, at the request of the police, it was given out in order that the publication of her picture and a full description might develop possible clues to her disappearance. But, although there were a number of apparent inconsistencies about the case—probably due to the natural shrinking from the nationwide attention which the affair attracted—nothing definite was ever discovered. The most striking point elicited by the investigations of the newspaper reporters was that, despite the Arnold family's definite statements that their daughter had had no love affairs, she had been carrying on a secret correspondence with a bachelor in Pittsburgh. But it was quite evident that the man in question could have had no connection whatever with the disappearance of the New York heiress and this lead was dropped both by the police and the press.

White slavery, which was at that time very much in the public eye, was popularly blamed for the unsolved mystery but when it came to details even the most astute detectives were at a loss to explain how a strong, athletic girl like Miss Arnold could have been kidnapped and concealed without leaving the slightest trace, while, if she had been made away with, it would have been practically impossible to hide all signs of the body and her distinctive clothing—descriptions of which were flashed to all parts of the world. That Miss Arnold had not planned to leave home was evident from the fact that she left all her jewels and a considerable sum of money in cash behind her and that, on the very morning of her disappearance, she had written several letters relative to a tea in honor of a number of her former schoolmates at Bryn Mawr.

The theory of suicide was untenable because her body would have been found. Premeditated flight was hardly to be considered, while sudden flight would have undoubtedly led to recognition somewhere in the country. Foul play was the only alternative remaining, but in the event that Miss Arnold was either kidnapped or killed, how did those responsible succeed in hiding all traces of their crime from the police of two continents?

This is the question which has puzzled the minds of master detectives like William J. Burns, Chief Flynn of the secret service, Sir E. R. Henry, chief of Scotland Yard, and hundreds of others who have endeavored in vain to solve the riddle without a clue.

Robot Writes Message

Berlin, Germany, has been much interested in a full-sized dummy of a woman which writes the exact reproduction of the handwriting of the sender operating some distance away. The operator pens the message on a device which transmits the impulses to the robot, which in turn transfers these impulses to a blackboard or chart.

Women as Chattels

Behind the question: "Who giveth this woman?" to be married to this man? was the one-time accepted belief that a woman was a "chattel," like furniture.
